SPIRIT TELECOM BRINGS 'NON-NBN' SUPERFAST INTERNET TO EUREKA TOWER

Spirit Telecom taking Eureka Tower to Greater Heights

Spirit Telecom Limited (ASX: ST1) ("Spirit") is pleased to announce that Eureka Tower, arguably one of Melbourne's most iconic buildings, located at Southbank, is now connected with Spirit's superfast internet, servicing 575 apartments.

Eureka residents now have access to robust, unlimited downloads and uploads, running at speeds up to 200/200Mbps accessed from Spirit's own independent fibre, which runs through the spine of the tower.

The distribution of superfast internet is made possible by a 'Switched Ethernet' that is installed throughout the 297.3-metre-high building. For 'powering up' the Internet throughout Eureka Tower, Spirit have deployed their network via an optic fibre backbone over 90 levels.

As a non-NBN alternative, Spirit's network provides more choice for the prestigious residential facility. The installation has been the result of months of planning with Eureka's management, resulting in meticulous standards being applied to ensure the best internet experience for residents.

Managing Director of Spirit Telecom, Geoff Neate, said:

"We are delighted to be part of such an iconic landmark in Melbourne and have been pleasantly surprised at the interest and immediate take up of our service by residents. With 9% of apartments being signed up on the day we launched, we are well aware that expectations have been set and we have to live up to them."

"Since December, the Spirit team have successfully installed large and complex builds in some of the more significant buildings across Australia – SPC Towers on the Gold Coast, Vogue apartments, South Yarra and now Eureka Tower in Melbourne".

"These examples alone, demonstrate the strength and attractiveness of our network infrastructure capability".
